

2022 Como, Italy Renewable Energies

The use of renewable energy is becoming increasingly important for the most sustainable development possible. To this end, we supplied electropolished TCOIL heat exchangers, serving a heat pump, to be immersed in the waters of Lake Como. The aim is to provide climate control in a renovated period villa, Villa Savoja, by exploiting water power. The idea behind this project is to save energy by creating new energy.